

Join Maine's Over 50 Volunteer Community

What is ENCorps?

ENCorps is a free program for Mainers aged 50 and older. Each year, ENCorps offers workshops for older adults from throughout the state, focusing on environmental stewardship, grassroots leadership and community development, with an emphasis on making decisions that protect and improve quality of life for all residents. Free, informative and fun programs offer you the skills, knowledge and guidance you need to make positive changes in your community.

Why be a part of ENCorps?

Whether you are already working to improve your community or just beginning to get involved, ENCorps will provide you with new opportunities.

You will learn valuable skills and techniques to help improve your community through ongoing free workshops and seminars; attend a two-day annual Summit that includes workshop sessions with state and national leaders focused on improving and protecting the quality of life in Maine; be eligible for stipends to help fund community volunteer projects; and become part of a statewide network of volunteers.

What can ENCorps do for you?

ENCorps is an on-going program that offers various workshop and activities around the state. These skill-building and educational seminars and gatherings will enhance your knowledge about topics such as community development and useful skills like grant writing and using social media, while allowing you the chance to network with other volunteers in Maine. ENCorps will give you the tools, energy, relationships and support to give you a jump start to complete a project that will improve or protect some part of your community.

You will receive a toolkit with "how to" information for making an impact in your community; a staff contact who will act as an ongoing resource; opportunities to connect with other volunteers so you can learn from one another; and project ideas and information to help you get started.
